OC	OT	Gen. 2:8	Wording	made the beasts of the earth after their kind	made the beast of the earth after his kind
OC	OT	Gen. 2:9	Wording	given every clean herb for food	given every green herb for food	Both OT1 and OT2 have "clean". However, the KJV has "green". I think there is a very good possibility and likelihood that "clean" is a mistake for "green". The scribe for OT1 likely misheard "clean" for "green" as they sound very similar. Both a hard "c" and "g" sound very similar. In addition, both "l" and "r" resemble each other so much that in some languages they are recognized as being in the same phoneme. In addition, the phrase or concept of a "clean herb" is found no where else in scripture, but the phrase "green herb" is found several times. The parallel account in the Book of Abraham (7:7) has "green herb". Also in Genesis 5:21, it actually refers back to this sentence in Genesis 2:9 when it says: "Every moving thing that lives shall be food for you, even as the green herb have I given you all things." So it is inconsistent to have Gen. 2:9 say "clean herb" but then have Gen. 5:21 quote it, but have "green herb". In addition, Isa. 13:10, Ps. 37:1, and 2 Kings 6:10 all have "green herb". Finally, the Hebrew word behind Gen. 2:9 also means "green".

NC	NT	Rev. 6:13	Wording	beast until the words of God are fulfilled	beast until the words of God shall be fulfilled	The following 2 items in Revelation are related. It involves a mix up on the NT2 manuscript. KJV chapters 17 and 18 of Revelation were originally written down as "correct" on the NT2 manuscript. However, at one point verse 17 of chapter 18 was marked for change. The word "is" was also circled on that verse and then the word "are" was written on NT2 after the words "verse 17th" and the word "correct" was crossed out. However, because this change was made after the initial writing, the scribe accidentally wrote the "verse 17th are" correction next to Chapter 17 of Revelation instead of Chapter 18. The chapter numbers utilized Roman numerals and it would be easy to mix up VII for VIII. In addition, verse 17 of Chapter 17 has nothing marked on it for change on the KJV Bible. It is only on verse 17 of Chapter 18. Also, this is not the only incidence where a mix up like this occurred.

For as death hath passed upon all men, to fulfill the merciful plan of the great Creator, there must needs be a power of resurrection.	The committee intended to remove the comma, but that creates an awkward run-on sentence. By adding a second comma, the reader is alerted to multiple potential readings and can decide the meaning for themself.
NC	BoM	2 Nephi 6:3	Punctuation			Denver happened to comment: Until this question was asked I had always thought the text refers to "our spirits" in the condition of being left if there had been no resurrection. Now, however, once the question has been asked and my attention focused on it I have a different view. Remembering that the punctuation was provided by John Gilbert, reworked by the committee, but not part of the original text, changes things. If the comma is gone then "became the Devil to rise no more" is a single statement regarding the Devil's condition, and the spirits are subject to him and correspondingly likewise doomed to rise no more. I've always read it as referring to our spirits. However, taking a closer look at it the language very well could refer to the condition of the Devil, and the effect of being subject to him is in turn to likewise also share the condition of not rising any more from the low state he occupies. It is a very different reading. But it works, and explains why the phrase "rise no more" appears twice: Once in reference to the spirits of men, and once to refer to the Devil. I think the comma after the Devil should be removed so that the phrase "the Devil to rise no more" is kept together without an interruption of the text. Original Punctuation from John Gilbert 1830 edition which passed to RE edition caused the sentence to incorrectly liken the "perfect knowledge" of both groups rather than likening the "living souls" nature of both groups. Adding the comma puts "perfect knowledge" as a parenthetical thought, allowing the correct meaning.

But if they would not repent, they must suffer even as I: which suffering caused myself, even God, the greatest of all, to tremble because of pain, and to bleed at every pore, and to suffer both body and spirit and would that I might not drink the bitter cup and shrink. Nevertheless	Five total punctuation changes. From: Denver: This particular passage of revelation involves the Lord trying to persuade man to take seriously repentance because the price paid in atoning for sin was daunting. So much so that mankind has a hard time conceiving of the difficulties involved. So much so that God Himself, the Greatest of All, was brought to "shrink" and plead to be relieved of the burden. Given the collections of thoughts I approached this as a blank canvas and did my own punctuation. Here is what I came up with to sort out the collection of ideas using punctuation to isolate and aggregate the chain of ideas:
